From the German of Langbein.

HABICH AND HATTICH "A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush."

There are two little songsters well known in the land,
Their names are I-have and O-had-I;
I-have will come tamely and perch on your hand,
But O-had-I will mock you most sadly.

I-have, at first sight, is less fair to the eye,
But his worth is by far more enduring
Than a thousand O-had-Ps, that sit far and high,
On roofs and on trees so alluring.

Fall many a golden egg this bird will lay, And sing you, "Be cheery! he cheery!" O, merrily, then, will the day glide away, And sweet shall your sleep be, when weary

But let an O-had-I once take your eye,
And a longing to catch him once seize you,—
He'll give you no comfort nor rest till you die;
Life-long he'll torment you and tease you.

He'll keep you all day running up and down hill, Now racing, now panting and creeping; While far overhead, this sweet bird, at his will, With his golden plumage is sweeping.

Then every wise man who attends to my song,
Will count his I-have a choice treasure,
And, whene'er an O-had-I comes flying along,
Will just let bim fly at his pleasure.

SONNET. BY WORDSWORTH.

Feel for the wrongs to universal ken,
Daily explosed—we that unshrouded lies;
And selc the anderer in his darkest den,
Whether conducted to the spot by night
And meanings, or he dwells (as if the wren
Taught him concealment) hidden from all eyes,
In allence, and the awful modestices
Of surrow;—feel for all, as brother men!—Feel for the post—but not to still your qualitable,
By formal charity, or dole of alms;
Learn to be just—just through impartial law y
Fare as ye may, erect and equalize;
And what ye cannot reach by statute, draw
Each from his fountain of self-sacrifice!
